Winding Up Another Year

Before each student lay 1965, a mass of jumbled string. Each person could wind his string to suit his abilities. This is the story of how PHSers proceeded through the process of "Winding Up Another Year."

WINDING UP
ANOTHER YEAR IN

Student Life

Extra-curricular activities supplemented studying during the school year. Musicals, going steady, coke dates, slumber parties—all were a part of the memories in the ball of string as students continued "Winding Up Another Year."

Loading luggage for their trip to Girls' and Boys' State at Indiana University are Rod Manifold, Cindy King, Ed Larimer, Kathy Jackson, and Gayle Bomar. These students learned how our government functions during their one-week visits.

Students Organized, Studied, and Began

Munching a cookie, Gary Scagnoli settles down to hit the books during summer school as Mr. Larson, instructor formulates other plans. Classmates Joyce Kreutzer and Leanne Norwood agree that an early-morning snack would taste good

As those "lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer" approached, students departed for the nearest lake to dance the watusi and the jerk to latest hit songs like "Twist and Shout" and "I Get Around." Other more industrious pupils stayed behind to enroll in PHS's biggest summer school, which featured morning and afternoon classes in government, sociology, and typing. Students representing the school packed their suitcases and traveled to various college campuses to participate in seminars. But when the September school-bell rang, students and teachers grabbed their books and pencils, eager to start "Winding Up Another Year."

Through sleet and rain and dark of night, Bill Westcott, Susan Hilgeman, Clo Giver, Barb Lutz and Joyce Zerbe watch the Tiger football team trounce Huntington.

Lovely Cheryl Garrett flashes a smile as she poses in her coronation gown and robe. Cheryl is Miss Indiana State Fair for 1965.

"Winding Up Year"

Poster-laden walls told of the annual Student Body elections as eager candidates solicited support from students. National elections prompted the organizing of the Young Republicans and Young Democrats. Several students decided to pack home books to study, which earned benefits as the National Honor Society boasted the largest membership ever at PHS. Seniors began applying for college entrance and Juniors experienced their first college tests. After the first six weeks, we joined clubs and geared ourselves to begin a year of extra-curricular activities. We adjusted readily to a new administration and settled down to "Wind Up Another Year."

Accepting authority as Student Body President, Mike Eikenberry receives the gavel offered by Mr. Spandau. Mike, by virtue of his office, presides over Student Council meetings and introduces speeches at auditoriums.

"What a darling idea!" exclaim several members of the Tigerettes as they examine Susan Hilgeman's Senior cords. Skirts and trousers displayed a lot of originality this year.

Operating behind a new desk, Miss Brundage checks out a book for Carol Smiley. The book shelf in the desk displays a new collection of books.

Library Facilities Used by Students;

Several Mothers wait to be served in the refreshment line at the Mother-Daughter Tea. Petits fours, nuts, mints and punch were served from a table highlighted by a fall floral arrangement and brown tapers.

New additions to the school included a professional desk in the PHS library. A new series of Classical books was purchased for students' use. This year Peru participated in a book-selection program. Five hundred books were displayed in the library for one week. Students and teachers looked through the books and indicated those that they would like to have in the school library.

Social activities of the Girls' League included sponsoring a Mother-Daughter Tea which featured a style show. Senior cords came in strong again this year with Seniors wearing painted shorts and head scarves too. The hard-earned "P" and the head of a tiger adorned many of the cords. Students read books, planned activities, and wore cords in the process of "Winding Up Another Year."

Ring the bell for victory! A victory bell, painted the traditional gold and black and adorned with a Tiger sticker, proclaimed victory after football games. Band members Butch LeGate and Jim McLaughlin pull the bell.

Tall and majestic stands the winning homecoming float, a replica of the Arc de Triump. An awed Jane Hoffman views the designs on the top of the Arc.

Victories, Celebrated

School spirit played a large part in "Winding Up 1965." Students wore pins, buttons, and sweatshirts pledging their allegiance to the Tiger Teams. Faculty members stimulated school spirit and organized a bigger yellblock. A victory bell was purchased by the Athletic Department for use at football games. Painted gold and fixed on a black frame, the bell was rung after touchdowns and after victorious games.

Auditoriums featured nationally known figures this year. While entertaining, the auditoriums were also educational. Several outstanding ones included conversations between criminals, a series of chemical experiments, and a judo lesson given by an expert. PHS students presented their own auditoriums on Thanksgiving and Christmas. Students found participating in school events a delightful way to "Wind Up Another Year."

"Charge toward a victorious season," say cheerleaders Barb Lutz, Clo Giver, and Susan Hilgeman as they decorate PHS halls with signs.

Santa Claus, smiling from a a teacher's door, and his elf, Becky Allbritten, highlighted the Christmas season.

Caroling a Tig-Arena full of people are the choir members who presented "This Is Christmas" for the Christmas Concert. Because the tone of the music was more casual than in previous years, performers wore ski-sweaters and casual head warmers.

Seasonal Festivities Broke Study Routine,

Festivities, from adorning lockers with seasonal decorations to attending major athletic events, interrupted even the most rigorous schedule of both the faculty and the students.

Evidences of that mystical quality, school spirit, were prominent as one viewed posters advertising the advent of school projects or the anxiety on the faces of students at morale-building pep sessions.

Evidence of Cupid's mischievous acts are prevailant in the Senior girls' lockers. For each holiday the appropriate decorations were made.

"Shh! Mr. Hooker" cautions Sophomore Bruce Bachman, as he has his hearing tested. Hearing and sight tests are administered to every Sophomore.

Giving her class their daily assignment on the overhead projector is Mrs. Ferrara. Thermofax, a machine that makes master stencils from any regularly typed material, made test preparation a breeze for teachers.

Provided Enjoyment

Playing postman are Janet Toepfer and Judy King who place mail in the teachers' boxes. Duties of the office assistants include running errands, typing, and answering the telephone.

Through improved equipment in the many diverse departments of the PHS curriculum, students and teachers gained greater insight into their various realms of endeavor.

Not all people involved in the management of the school were adults. Many students assisted administrators in various ways—by helping with the programing of student schedules in the Deans' offices, caring for the sick under the supervision of the school nurse, and delivering messages for the main office.

"Do you think I should join that group?" questions director, Mr. Feit, to new stage band member, Mr .Noble, music director. Awaiting his decision are Louise Schini, student director, and Suzanne Zwickl, a pianist.

Guns loaded and ready to shoot, the senior girls, R. Moss. D. Groat, N. Atkinson, L. Morris, J. DeLawter, H. Clark, V. Catey, C. Giver, and M. Huber, prove "You Can't Get a Man with a Gun."

Skits, Dances, Music

Pushin' the broom is for the birds, muses T. Helvie, as fellow buddies. D. Hinz D. Cooley, D. Richards, B. Davidson, L. Shank E. Clark, M. Ashby, and T. Brown, convince him "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones."

"There's No Business Like Show Business" echoed the grand finale from the Peru High School Broadway stage, ending the 1964 Rodeo. Capacity audiences were entertained for two-and-one-half hours during "An Evening with Irving Berlin."

Music for all types of personalities was featured. The Rebels, a group of Senior girls, sang, "O How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning" for late risers. "Stepping Out with My Baby" was intended for the party-goers at PHS. The typical Indiana winter touch took a turn to the tropical side as the Sophomore girls danced to "Tropical Heat Wave."

Highlighting the performance of the stage band, Mr. Noble, Music Director, played the saxaphone to fill the place of an absent band member.

Vicki Crowden, Florence Jones, and Joyce Zerbe musically question "How Deep Is the Ocean" as a marine background sets the tone.

Entertained at Rodeo

"It's a bear!" screams frightened Marty Doucette, Lil' Abner, as he leaps to Susie Hilgeman, Daisy May, for protection.

First act songs featured the light, humorous songs and the serious, love-laden tunes. "Anything You Can Do" and "It's a Lovely Day Today" typified the songs in this act. The second act used songs Mr. Berlin wrote for the Broadway stage. Selections included "Puttin on the Ritz," "You're Just in Love," and "You Keep Coming Back Like a Song."

Live it up by 'Doin What Comes Naturally is the motto of the hillbilly Juniors, J. Hoffman J. McCormick; S. Bennett B. Westcott; N. Dawal; J. Blackman, B. Allbritten S. Clark; B. Newhouse D. Teal; C. Joseph; M. Doucette; B. Ballard C. Craycraft N. Snyder B. Craft; D. Goff, R. Weller E. Bethel, J. Nelp.

Smiling beneath a crown of white chrysanthemums, Senior Vicki Crowden reigns as Queen over the 1965 Homecoming as PHS. Vicki and her court led the Homecoming festivities, which were climaxed by the crowning ceremonies.

Reigning as Homecoming Princesses are Alice Horr, Sophomore attendant; Linda Claybaugh, Junior attendant; and Wray Ann Pohlman, Senior Maid-of-Honor.

Queens Wound Up

Four pert, pretty girls chosen by the Student Body gave the 1965 Homecoming festivities a delightful flair. Doning coats for protection against the bitter chill of the football evening, Queen Vicki and her Court presided over the Homecoming parade during halftime and cheered the Tiger team to a smashing victory over Alexandria. Pre-game activities included a pep rally and the traditional bonfire.

Dressed as a crazy, raggety-ann doll, active Queen Vicki performs during a half-time basketball game with the Tigerettes. Vicki also sings in the Swing Choir.

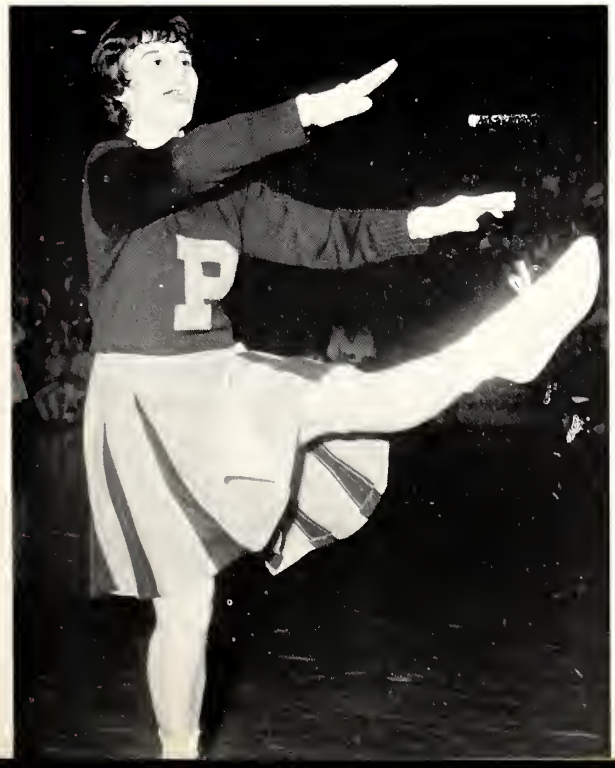
1965 With Beauty



Dazzling in her long white dress, 1964 Rodeo Queen Clo Giver flashes her pert smile for the photographer. "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," was played by the PHS band during the crowning ceremonies as Clo officially and prettily began her reign.

Spotlights and fanfare revealed the dazzling Rodeo Queen and Court to two packed houses at the 1965 Rodeo. The crowning ceremony kicked-off the Rodeo, climaxing four long weeks of rigorous practice. The Queen's dias, a yellow background featuring a glittering golden crown and chairs arranged in tiers, was empty during the performance as the Court helped wind up another Rodeo by performing in it.

"Siscombaugh, Siscombaugh!" yells peppy Queen Clo as she tries to arouse school spirit during a basketball game. Clo also acts as vice-president of the Student Council.

Practicing for the Great Hall scene is the entire cast of "Camelot."

"One Brief, Shining Moment . . . Camelot"

Impatiently waiting for Guenevere, Joyce Zerbe, and her Lady-in-waiting, Janis Gouchenour, to finish their "girl talk" is Lancelot, Jerry Yentes.

Excitement spread over England, as the entire community of Camelot awaited King Arthur's future Queen. As the curtain opened on the Junior-Senior play, "Camelot," Arthur, posing nervously in a tree and trying to see his Queen, was confronted by the court magician, Merlyn, who offered him some advice. Guenevere and Arthur met quite accidently; however, Guenevere was unaware that he was the King and her future husband.

The famous musical evolved around the lives of England's fictional King and Queen, with Arthur advancing a new concept of chivalry, the famous Round Table. News of Arthur's wise idea spread throughout Europe. Upon hearing the new concept, Sir Lancelot of France decided to travel to England to become a Knight of the Round Table. The intense love of Guenevere and Lancelot caused Arthur to change tremendously during the course of the musical.

The conflict between Arthur and Lancelot, the love of Guenevere and Lancelot, and the combination of music in "Camelot," made this play one of the brightest highlights as PHS students "Wound Up Another Year."

Violently troubled by Guenevere's and Lancelot's love, King Arthur, Marty Doucette, throws his book in disgust.

Enticing Morgan Le Fey, Jayne Hoffman, with chocolates is Mordred, Todd Randolph, as the knights and ladies of Camelot, Larry Shank, Gloria Fishback, Dick Hinz, and Vicki Dugan, practice their parts.

"Arthur come down out of that tree!" calls Merlyn, Larry Kindlesparker.

Fluffing the angora on her steady's ring with a tooth brush, this PHS girl demonstrates one of the many methods of wearing a favorite guy's class ring.

"Congratulations to you both!" quotes Miss Azimow as she hands JoAnne Rody and Jim McLaughlin their gold and black rating cards, a recognition for getting on the honor roll.

"Little Things" Influenced PHSers' Lives

"I wonder who I have to play tag with today," muses Mrs. Lingenfelter as she checks the attendance sheet.

Life was filled with "little things" at PHS. Wrapping a steady's ring in angora, receiving a coveted "gold and black card," or explaining to the attendance officer the reason for tardiness—all varied the pace of students at PHS. New additions to the intramural system were the games of chess, checkers, ping-pong and volley-ball. Students who did not want to participate in these activities watched and rooted for their favorite contestants.

Many lockers looked wall-papered with library slips reminding a forgetful student of his overdue books. Signs advertising future events were posted all over the halls and stimulated attendance at extra-curricular events. "Little things" played an important part as PHSers "Wound Up Another Year."

Half-time shows featured the best in music and performers this year. Tigerettes and Majorettes collaborated with Mr. Noble and the band to come up with the "zaniest" routines.

Dances were exceptionally spectacular due to the planning by the art department and Mr. Taylor. "Christmas in Camelot" and "Morp" lent themselves to great originality and freedom of decor.

A miniature "Wall Street World" is operated by Mr. Rufe in the outer deans' office. Here each student buys his ticket to the sports events. Buses are arranged through this office and the school funds are balanced there. Enjoyment at games, and dances and business transactions all were a part of the process of "Winding Up Another Year."

Checking ticket receipts and sorting change, Mr. Rufe and Mrs. Frymire balance the money from the season ticket sales.

While They Received an Education

With brooms in the background, Mr. Grumpp, Mr. Frymire, and Mr. Massey check the order book for supplies for the school.

Flaming batons and original routines are the trademarks of head majorette Mary Frances Whitney as she charms and entertains sports fans at half-time shows.

Contemplating a "check" move, Mats plays chess. He also participates in ping-pong and basketball.

Mats Velander, Swedish Exchange student, shows a glass with hand-painted figurines from Sweden. Other Swedish items include a chopping board and a snowflake used for Christmas decorations.

Swedish Student Became a PHSer As

Upon arriving in the United States, Mats Velander, Swedish Exchange Student, adapted to our customs rapidly. He enjoyed a vacation, American style, with the Cole family. He eagerly participated in school activities. Now that he has "Wound Up An American Tour," he leaves with these words:

Students of Peru High.

I thank you so very much for the friendship you gave me during this past school year. Wherever I went you always helped me. I would also like to thank Mr. Allmon and the teachers of PHS who really encouraged me. But most of all I would like to thank the Coles who gave me a home in the USA, a home in which I really felt at home.

Though I missed a year in school in Sweden, I do not regret my coming here. I got a good insight into American customs and ways of living, new friends and an experience for life.

I hope you too will be able to contribute to the friendship of two countries by joining one of the exchange programs. If you can't join any program, you can help by being nice to those foreign students in the USA.

Thank you,
Mats Velander

Honors, awards, achievements—all are a part of a high school student's education. At some time during each person's life, he will be recognized for his achievements. Award days, special letters, and newspaper clippings all singled out students who deserved recognition.

Speakers brought home trophies and ribbons to symbolize their rhetorical achievements. The PHS Music Department won honors at several state events and captured the admiration of Peru citizens at its annual concerts. Art had its glory, too. The PHS art collection was displayed at various places all over Indiana, and numerous citizens came in to view the collection. Scholars excelled, too, this year. Many students were rewarded for their scholastic achievements with scholarships. And sports had its "place in the sun." Several PHS athletes won state recognition for their prowess.

But the greatest achievement was graduation. Two-hundred sixty-one Seniors robed in cadet blue was an impressive sight on May 28, and represented twelve years of struggles and successes. Award day climaxed 1965 as all classes "Wound Up Another Year."

Graduation robes, the symbol of knowledge, hang next to a dunce sign. Is this more than coincidental?

"Congratulations, Scholars!" comments Mr. Davis as he hands the awards to Dick Gerard and Ben Scott, who received honorable mention for their performance on the National Merit Scholarship test.

Award Day "Wound Up Another Year"

Victorious speakers bring trophies back to the PHS collection. Examining one that was captured recently are NFL officers Donna Winn, Louise Schini, Kathy Jackson, Becky Allbritten, and Mina Murphy.

WINDING UP ANOTHER YEAR IN

Academics

Studying remained foremost with PHS students. Conquering logs in trigonometry, radicals in chemistry, oils in art, scales in music, laws in government, students maintained class standings and averages as they were "Winding Up Another Year" in Academics.

Charades in speech class are both fun and intriguing, and at the same time can be educational. Here Mr. Feit and Loretta Giver act a scene as Eddie Cook tries to guess what they are doing.

Book Reports, Speeches, Poems Were

Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors became more familiar with noted classics during their one-semester studies of literature. While some composed poetry, others wrote themes and book reports.

Lights burned late into the night as Seniors put the finishing touches on their research papers. Seniors developed their skill in creative writing. Emphasis was placed on vocabulary enlargement, logical thinking, and development of ideas.

Some Sophomores and Juniors prepared for their senior year by writing term papers similar to those of the Seniors. English courses, designed to teach more than grammar, stressed punctuation, organization, and creativity.

Notecards, notecards, and more notecards! As a mournful Linda Dahl surveys the ruins of her once orderly cards, Lony Arnold cannot help smiling at Linda's dilemna.

Sophomore students become more familiar with the school library as they search for material for their term papers.

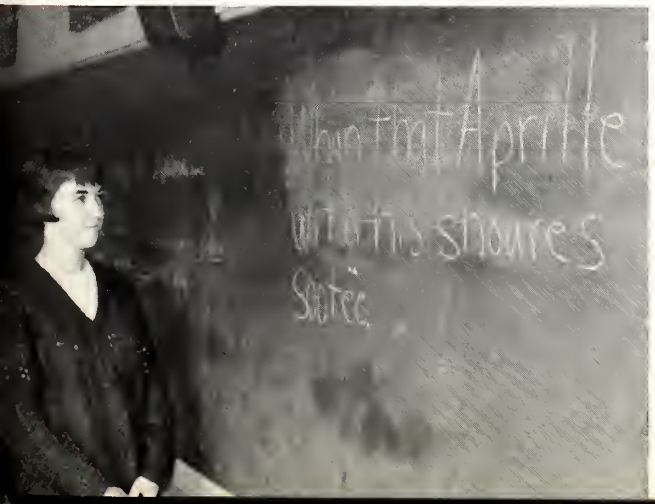
Important Parts of English Couses

"To be or not to be." This Shakesperian quote from Hamlet took on added meaning for Sophomores and Seniors who studied the play in detail after seeing it on film.

Journalism students not only sold ads for the yearbook but also studied newspaper writing and publishing. They mastered journalistic techniques in hopes of some day holding a position on the school publications' staffs.

At the beginning of the year Sophomores became acquainted with the school library. Although at first speech classes seemed foreboding, pupils soon found they gained poise and confidence before audiences.

Trying to fit their first headline on the Peruvian journalism students Susan Rhodes, Diane Tracey, and Steve Smith regretfully admit that it might be a little too long.



Smiles of recognition appear on Linda Morris's face as she deciphers Chaucerian English.

A Spanish siesta is a welcome rest from a long day's work. Steve Frushour, Terry Marburger, and Charlie Carter drop off for a short snooze, proving that the Spanish really know how to live.

Study Prevailed in Foreign Languages

"It's a small world" seemed to be in the minds of many who enrolled in foreign language courses. Two years of Latin, French, and Spanish were offered.

A second year of French was added to the curriculum, giving first year students the opportunity to increase fluency and reading and writing ability in advanced studies. Use of the oral-aural method enabled classes to practice conversing in French with ease.

One of the oldest languages in existence today, Latin served as a means for increasing one's vocabulary and knowledge of grammar. Those enrolled in this language course found the important part Latin played in the beginning of the English language. Several students did extensive research in extra-curricular projects.

Spanish is being recognized as an important language in the United States because of closer relations with Pan-American countries. The classes studied Spanish customs and culture, and also learned to speak, read, and write the language.

Pointing out the date, Latin student Alice Horr is relieved that she can tell Greg Manifold 1964 instead of MCMLXIV.

Artificial respiration can prove to be fatal if performed carelessly as demonstrated by Tom Brown on victim Steve Baird while Oma Huffman watches.

Students in health classes found how to maintain a neat personal appearance, plan a balanced diet, and safeguard good health. To care correctly for his body, one must first know its functions, necessities, and systems. Health students learned about common disorders, their causes, and cures. They therefore were better prepared to provide for their own physical condition.

Relinquishing Saturday morning sleep, novice drivers rose early to gain more driving experience. Large enrollment in safety classes caused students to drive extra hours before and after school and prompted the acquisition of a second car. Students on their way to school early in the morning often saw the gold and black training car.

Safety classes presented trainees with practical knowledge of a car and its principles of operation. They also filed in mind careful driving habits for use while on the road.

While Acting Served in Health, Safety

Oil in the radiator? Mr. Welcome and Joe Becker stare in bewilderment at Nancy Dinsmore's revolutionary solution to all of the car's troubles.

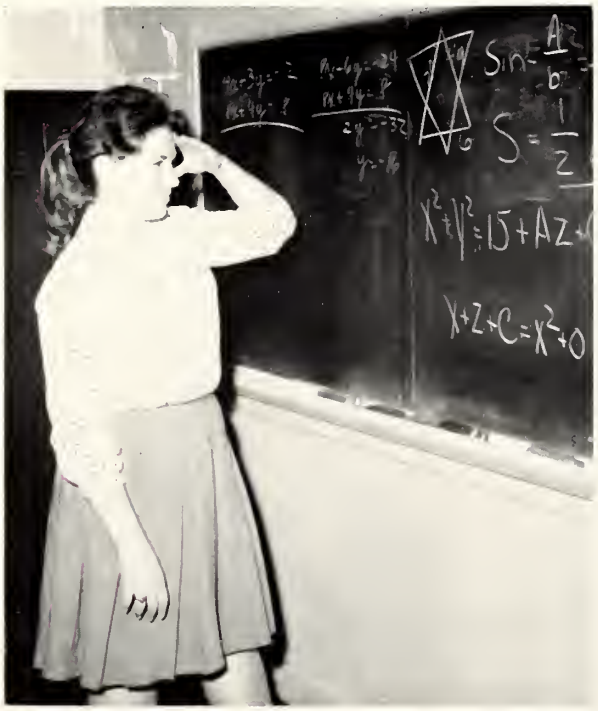
Patiently describing the use of a geometric figure, Mats Velander hopes Nancy Geyer remembers his explanation.

According to Webster, mathematics is a science of relations between quantities, magnitudes and operations. To those who studied math, however, it meant an interesting, complex, and challenging world of symbols, figures, and theories.

Mathemetical-minded students were offered courses in plane and solid geometry, algebra, and trigonometry. These studies offered practice in organized thought, careful computation, and correct conclusion. Student's artistic talents were tested in geometry classes as they constructed three dimensional figures.

PHS mathematicians found their computational knowledge applicable in many phases of learning, including physics, chemistry, and drafting. Because of its increasing importance in everyday life, math is often correctly called a key to the future.

Math: A World of Symbols, Theorems



As she views the intricate steps of a math problem, Joy Johnson wonders how she will ever get tomorrow's assignment.

Intense concentration is revealed by Betsy Westcott as she tries to remember exactly what two parallel lines are; Candy Beasley waits expectantly for the correct answer.

Showing their geography class where their stuffed animals would live if they were alive are Vicki Catey, Diane Shannon, and Carol Mattox.

"Incredible! It tastes delicious!" says student Donna Winn to Mr. Edwards, chemistry instructor, as she samples a chemical concoction.

And Science: A World of Discoveries

A puff of smoke, a pungent odor, and a resounding boom were trademarks of PHS science classes. Physics, chemistry, and geography offered a thorough study of the earth sciences.

Physics and its principles are as old as the ancient pyramids and yet as new as tomorrow's discoveries. An understanding of the physical laws governing the earth was tackled by high school physicists. Energy, work, power, light, and various aspects of sound were included in its main divisions.

Student chemists were concerned with basic elements and their use. Balancing equations, once seemingly impossible, was soon simply another step in solving problems. Lab exercises gave pupils the opportunity to see in detail the composition of substances and transformations they underwent.

Even though geography was quite different from the other two earth sciences offered, it, too, was an important phase of science. Topographies, climates, and the geographic locations of the world's countries were covered in a comprehensive course.

Although precession of a bicycle wheel seems very elementary to Mr. Dice, Don Kyees thinks perhaps the real explanation might be a bit more secondary.

"You'll be sorry, you male, you!" cries Mina Murphy to Mike Eikenberry as they depict a family quarrel. Meanwhile, sociology students Barby and Becky Pugh know the right solution to this situation must be somewhere in their books.

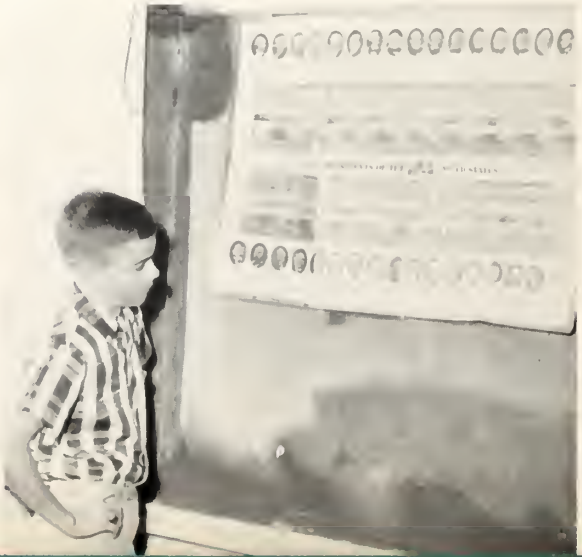
History Classes Brought Past to Life

The complex system of trade and commerce was revealed to students in business law and salesmanship. Business courses prepared boys and girls alike for futures as secretaries, accountants, or salesmen.

Beginning typists found it difficult not to look at the keyboard, but after the first few agonizing weeks they became more accomplished in speed and accuracy. The world of commercial enterprise existed in miniature in PHS business classes.

Explaining a sample ballot to the class are Carol Boyer and Kirk McKee as they prepare the material to present to the sophomore and junior class members.

A musing Dave Watson hopes that some day his picture will be with those of the United States presidents.



"Where were you on June twenty-third?" Harley Youngblood asks Sharron Hudson in mock court session during business law. Judge Dave Sims listens while he attempts to reach a verdict of guilty or not guilty.

And Business Taught Present Realities

While we read history, we make history. Although history mainly concerned the past, the present also was discussed and analyzed in government and sociology classes.

World and United States history brought to life the great men, battles, and eras of the past. The mistakes and crucial decisions of years gone by were applied to present events in the hope that men would profit through experience.

"I'll take ten!" says Vicki Catey to auctioneer Tom Hayes while Kenny Witt is being sold.

Time flies while Vicky Catey (above) attempts to beat the clock and make no errors during a speed typing test, as Loretta Giver (right) adds her accounting figures, hoping that they will total correctly on the first try.

Intense concentration is evident as Jim Mitchell shapes clay into a pottery bowl.

Music and art have been major ways of expressing man's feelings since his beginning on earth. PHS art classes did not draw cave etchings, nor did the music department sing Greek chants; yet they continued forms of expression as old as the world's people.

It was not difficult to find the art room—the paintings, drawings, and sculptures were certain giveaways. The art department provided attractive scenery for our plays, rodeos, and dances.

Art students perfected their creative skills through study and practice. Student artists learned the techniques of silk screening, ceramics, and oil painting.

Creative Arts Set

Paper mache animals, the "creations" of Billie Johnson, Cindy Stilwell, Karen Kunkle, and Rhonda Weller, seem to posses personalities and characters of their own.

Sketching with India ink Janis Pattison finds that a steady hand is necessary to perfect fine details.

"Where is that last note?" Linda Dahl hopefully awaits one final "umpa" from Ron Moffat's tuba.

Musicians experienced more than one change during the year. Their concerts were entirely different from the traditional programs of the past. At yuletide the atmosphere was casual, the Christmas story unique. The Spring Concert was divided into two separate evening presentations, one choral, the other instrumental.

For the first time in many years, the music department traveled to music contests throughout the state. The Belles, Swing Choir, Choir, and Band performed at many civic functions, state-wide and local.

The Tri-State Music Festival provided an opportunity for evaluation of other musical groups. An invitational contest at Ball State University proved both beneficial and enjoyable.

The Stage for Talent

Awaiting approval of the Belles dresses, Mr. Noble proudly shows a new gown to Patty Wilson and Pam Yentes as the rest of the Belles watch.

Publishing the Peruvian can be both fun and educational for those taking print shop. Greg Hall, Jim Hahn, Sam Baldwin, and Dennis Weideman adjust the paper while learning to operate the presses.

Handicrafts Taught Future Tradesmen

For those who planned occupations in various vocational trades, acquiring skills in woodworking, drafting, printing, and machine operation began with courses at PHS. These practical arts courses provided experience in the mechanical aspects of industry.

The clack and clatter of PHS presses printing the school paper meant a new issue "hot off the press." To the printing classes, however, this sound symbolized a week or more of work setting type, printing copy, and running presses. Apprentice printers set headlines and printed passes, programs, and attendance slips. Much printing was done for the junior high, including the supply of report cards and pass slips.

Boys in metal shop classes learned the uses of the drill press, metal lathe, and grinders. In the process of welding they used both the arc welder and the welding torch. Finished products in metal classes included scribers, punches, and tack hammers.

Using a machine is so much easier than cleaning and repairing its intricate parts find Jan Williams and Alfred Wahlig.

Various machines familiar to boys in woodshop include the circular saw. Mike Hoover watches as Roby Sparks swiftly slices a board.

Useful Skills in Practical Arts Classes

Drafting courses were designed to teach accuracy and precision in the use of special drawing tools. Students drew scale models of machine parts with compasses ,T-squares, special rulers, and protractors. Future engineers and architects found the knowledge gained about machine and house construction invaluable for ultimate use.

Buzzing saws and pounding hammers were signs of another day's work in woodworking classes. Here students made plans for constructions of their own. First the scale model was drawn, then a step-by-step plan of procedure was submitted to the teacher for approval. The jig saw, jointer, wood lathe, and band saw were used during the building stage. Some items that were made included coffee tables, lamps, cutting boards, and bookcases.

Practical arts people, beginners or more advanced, realized the feeling of pride in accomplishment, whether it was in printing a paper, drawing a dream home, or building a homecoming float.

Precision, preserverence, and practice enable Don Sanders and Art Edwards to duplicate a blue-print with compasses, T-squares, and rulers.

Co-ordinating accessories, Lois Behny and Sandy Shuler try various combinations as Connie Collins models her newly-made skirt and blouse.

Gaining experience in home economics, Marcia Russel and Pam Hatton serve cafeteria lunches as part of their home economics work.

Home Economics Stressed Practice

Looking out of the corner of her eye, Jennifer Smith woefully regards a mound of dirty dishes as Mary Fisher offers some advice on the best way to do the job.

Does the way to a man's heart lead down the road of good cooking? Home economics girls certainly hoped this was true as they acquired the talents necessary for becoming master cooks. Practice was the byword in this department as future homemakers developed skills required by their vocations.

Home economics majors found, however, that much more than sewing and cooking was involved in running a home properly. "Preparation, education, dedication"—the qualities of a home manager, were put to the test by potential homemakers this past year in daily classroom work.

Have a real cool time "EEL" Terry it's been a "splash"!!!

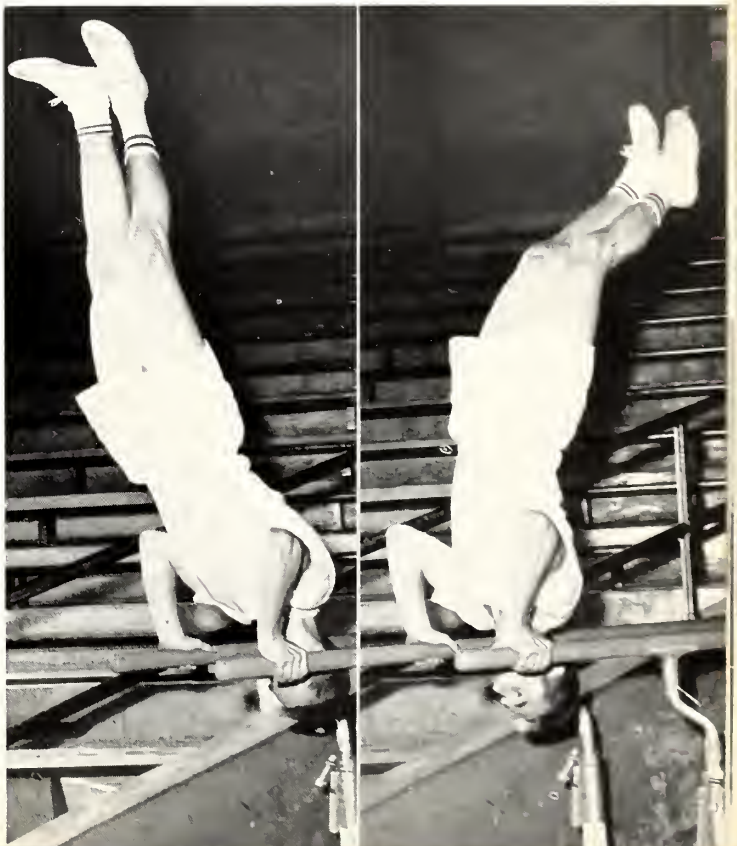
John Marks

Demonstrating modern dance steps, Becky Means and Mona Black are aided by Mrs. Sullivan as they form two complementary poses.

"Bombs away!" thinks John Marks as he prepares to dive from the board during swimming class.

While Gym Emphasized Perseverance

What goes up must come down! John Hughes suddenly realizes this principle of gravity as he attempts a head stand on the parallel bars.



One, two, three, LEAP! Although this sounds like a game of leap frog, it was only one of the modern dance steps of girls' gym classes. Jazz ballet, a phase of physical education, included the presentation of original dances by groups of girls. The girls also participated in intermural sports in their classes, such as volleyball, badminton, dodgeball, and soccer.

While girls concentrated on becoming more graceful, boys were concerned with more manly exercises. Calisthentics, isometrics, basketball, and tumbling kept them in top physical condition. Use of the "horse" and parallel bars was supplemented by warm-up exercises and mat tumbling. Swimming was also offered as part of the physical education program. Swimming laps and using kick boards and ankle bands improved the swimmers' speed, style, and strength.

WINDING UP ANOTHER YEAR IN

Activities

Working in clubs and sponsoring community projects, PHSers assumed the responsibilities of leadership. Organizing, planning, and directing club work was only a segment in club projects as students finished "Winding Up Another Year."

Worker Bees of the Girls' League are the elected homeroom representatives. These include: Row 1: E. Thurston, E. Dethel, B. Allbritten, L. Weaver, C. Catey, S. Walker K. Pattison. P. McComas, M. Whitney, K. Hudson. Row 2: L. Melson, N. Dawalt, B. Pugh, V. Catey, C. Holy, M. Pohlman, P. Reinke, A. Sheneman, C. Stilwell. Row 3: P. Smith, J. Toepfer, S. Ralstin, J. McNeely, J. Cattin, L. Hilligoss B. Karowsky, L. Thompson.

Style Show Highlighted Girls' Agenda

"Just two more strands and we will be finished," sighs president Karen Kunkle with relief. Helping to trim the twelve foot tree are Marilyn Huber, first vice-president Jane Hoffman assistant treasurer, Donna Winn, second vice-president Mina Murphy secretary and Amy Taylor treasurer.

"Is this locker mine? . . . Where is room 301? . . . Which direction is the cafeteria?" queried incoming sophomores as they toured PHS with the assistance of this year's Girls' League Cabinet.

Celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary, the Girls' League entertained at the annual Mother Daughter Social, which was highlighted by a style show featuring teachers, mothers and students as models.

Straight from King Arthur's Court came the decor for the League Dance, "Christmas in Camelot," enjoyed by over 150 couples.

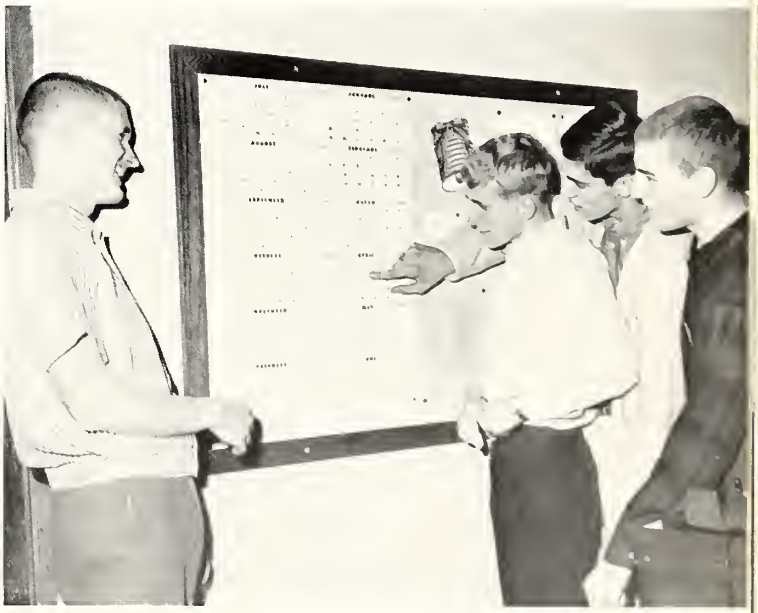
After sponsoring the dance, the girls continued their Yule activities with the purchase of a twelve foot evergreen to brighten the main hall and the presentation of the skit, "The Shoemaker and the Elves."

Concluding the activities for senior girls, but beginning a series of social events for freshmen, the Girls' League climaxed the year's events with the traditional Kid Party.

Responsible for the appearance of our halls are: Row 1: D. Frushour, J. Aikman, M. Hoover, M. Mills, R. Huddleston, D. Geiselman, B. Gebhart. Row 2: D. DeWitt, J. Fultz, L. Minns, B. Buffington, T. Hughes, D. Baker, T. Rogers, Mr. Welcome, sponsor. Row 3: T. Hayes, M. O'Connell, H. Masiuk, B. Lavoncher, M. Eikenberry, M. Mayo, J. Hoover, M. Aikman.

As Boys Promoted Clean-Up Campaign

Trying to find an open date on the school calendar for the "Morp" are Denny Hunt, treasurer; Bruce Thurston, vice-president; Jerry Yentes, president; and Bob Rockenbaugh, secretary.



Boasting over four-hundred members, the Boys' League was the only club to which all boys belonged.

While projects for some clubs were many and brief, the League chose one unending project—removing litter from the halls of PHS. Day after day, Boys' League Council members wearing their gold and black beanies for identification, combed the school for that one piece of paper that might detract from the appearance of the building.

Immediately preceding the Thanksgiving season, the League sponsored a program where the Rev. Ralph Danielsen of St. John's Lutheran Church along with the high school choir conveyed the mood of the approaching holiday.

While the boys' counterpart, the Girls' League, sponsored the traditionally formal Christmas Dance, the Boys' League planned its yearly casual dance to brighten the Spring social calender.

Receiving its charter in 1926 soon after the establishment of the first chapter in the United States, the local National Honor Society group has functioned as an active organization for nearly forty years. Being the most selective of all PHS clubs, Honor Society required students to possess a 93 average as juniors and 91 as seniors to be eligible for admittance.

As National Honor Society encouraged scholastic excellence among its many future leaders, the Student Council, composed of elected representatives from each homeroom and class, fostered competent student government. Sponsoring the annual All Fund Drive, which reached a record high of over $1200, the Council assisted many community charities.

Throughout the year, Council members attended a variety of workshops on student government at Indiana University and high schools throughout the state. With active standing committees, the Student Council managed all student elections, provided signs in each room with directions as to where to go in case of fire, recommended repairs in maintenance of the building, and directed events in pep sessions.

"Just one more vote to tally," quips Jane Hoffman as members of the election committee tabulate ballots for Homecoming candidates. Other committeemen are Jo-Anne Rody, Mike Saine, and co-chairmen Donna Winn and Steve Clark.

Activated and Conducted School Affairs

Representing the voice of each homeroom are Student Council members. Row 1: J. Hoffman, C. Porter, A. Horr, A. Taylor, D. Winn, V. Crowden, secretary; C. King, treasurer. Row 2: J. Rody, C. Trudging through February coldness, Y-Teeners rang doorbells for the Miami County Heart Fund Drive. The senior group continued their annual project of decorating the doors of various rooms with Yuletide greetings.

Many needy families in the community were clothed as a result of a charity dance sponsored by the Junior Y-Teens. PHS students danced with "Madras Madness" to music provided by local high school talent. Admission for the dance was a piece of old but usable clothing.

The biggest project for the sophomores was learning the song and goals of the organization.

While the Y-Teens donated their time to the Heart Fund, the Hi-Y Club was busy collecting for the March of Dimes. This year the club united their activities into one. During meetings the group was educated and also entertained by films and guest speakers.

Initiating many activities throughout the year are Juniors: Row 1: B. Geberin, J. Grant, E. Bethel, P. Wilhelm, L. Croy, S. Sommers, L. Claybaugh, B. Siblisk, R. Longenecker, J. Hoffman, V. Dugan, treasurer. Row 2: V. Richards, L. Melson, J. Gochenour, A. Taylor, president; R. Weller, N. Snyder, E. Thurston, J. Matthews, G. Fishback, vice-president; P. Hartleroad, V. Helping in the library each day are: Row 1: G. Bryant, C. Dillman, S. Moseley. Row 2: P. Bales, B. Eisenmenger, C. Smiley, secretary-treasurer; Miss Brundage, sponsor. Row 3: K. Brown, C. Lees, president; L. Norwood. Row 4: J. Lavoncher, S. Peters, B. Scott.

As masters of the Dewey Decimal System, the Card Catalog, and Reader's Guide, members of the Library Club aided students in finding books and materials for classroom and personal use. Members, striving to create a pleasant atmosphere of study, decorated the library for all occasions and sponsored a nation-wide book exhibit.

As the Library Club promoted literature, the Latin Club activated interest in the study of Roman culture. While many think Latin to be dead, club members found evidence of the ancient language in all phases of their modern life. In commercial trade names, governmental policies, and word derivatives, the club discovered Latin to be an intrinsic part of all civilization.

Library and Foreign Language Clubs

Sophomores inducted into the Latin Club are: Row 1: M. Kunce, G. Gamble, S. Welke, M. Mumaugh, C. Miller, N. White, N. Mattox, L. Inman, D. Hull, A. Horr, vice-president; C. Porter, secretary; D. Marburger, Mr. Martinez, sponsor.

Strove to Extend Cultural Knowledge

Culturally supplementing their respective departments and encouraging an interest in foreign languages, the French and Spanish Clubs aided students in speaking a foreign tongue.

Learning of Latin American customs from a former PHS student, the Spanish Club assembled to hear a lecture given by Mike Murphy, who had previously been serving with the Peace Corps in Costa Rica.

During the second semester, a new club member Juan Lopez, who escaped from Cuba, aided student's fluency by conversing with the students in his native language.

Fluency was also the principal aim of the French Club in the organization's first year at PHS. At the Christmas meeting the singing of carols prevailed as students learned that only through constant practice did their accents improve. Listening to recordings of their songs, the club worked to correct errors in pronunciation. With lectures, films, and discussions, members attempted to gain an improved understanding of France and her people.

Organizers of the newly formed French Club are: Row 1: D. LaCoss, J. Hill, R. Etue, L. Hays, G. Scagnoli, F. Davis. Row 2: J. Hoffman, V. Dugan, S. Zwickl, L. Morris, treasurer; J. Matthews, V. Crowden. Row 3: R. Truitt, D. Place, P. Huff, K. Harris, V. Gray, S. Minns. Row 4: J. Hutchinson, S. Mavrick, T. Strawsburg, C. Hetzner, T. Robinson, Mrs. Rose, sponsor. Row 5: J. Hoover, J. Whack, J. Kreutzer, vice-president; C. Joseph, president; L. Thompson, B. Wilson, secretary.

Amateur artists of PHS include: Row 1: L. Jackson, S. Cattin, M. Murphy, C. Givens, B. Geberin, S. McMinn. Row 2: L. Vettel, M. Black, B. Hodson, B. Kinzie, J. Hoover, treasurer; L. Giver, S. Walker. Row 3: M. Sidwell, P. McKamey, A. Taylor, vice-president; J. Zerbe, secretary; C. Garrett, C. Layton, N. Geyer. Row 4: A. Ash, D. Lepkojus, J. Berger, president; J. Mitchell, T. Swagerle, sergeant-at-arms; Mr. Taylor, sponsor.

Students Developed Varying Interests

Attending out of town exhibits, executing individual projects, and studying art in depth were but a few activities of the Art Club.

Besides lending paintings from the PHS collection to Marion, the club also attended the Marion exhibition to view works of Indiana students and artists. Aided by the extensive G. David Thompson art collection, students studied the American masters works throughout the busy but rewarding year.

While Art Club members worked in the evening, NFL participants started in early morning. Leaving from school at 5 a.m., the PHS speakers prepared for a day of stiff competition at a destination several hours away.

A new requirement for retaining membership was that all orators attend at least three meets during the year. After attaining recognition as a team and individually, the orators concluded their schedule by participating in the state contests.

By 1966 over half of the United States' population will be under twenty-five years of age; thus job competition will be the keenest ever for America's youth. Striving for practical methods to insure future jobs, the Industrial Club worked on manual projects and heard speakers.

Just as the Industrial Club prepared boys for the future, Future Homemakers of America guided girls toward careers in home economics. Through Save the Childrens Federation, the club assisted in a state-wide clothing drive for needy children. Members also gained satisfaction in joining other Indiana clubs and in financially aiding five foreign children and two American children.

While the FHA assisted many people outside school, the Safety Patrol boys concentrated their efforts toward protecting PHS students going to and from school each day. Receiving service pins at Awards Day, safety patrol members accepted praise from the Peru Police Department for their many hours of hard work.

Future Homemakers of America are: Row 1: J. Butzin, vice-president; M. Rigle, H. McQuinn, F. Durham, M. Hight. Row 2: R. Morris, S. Peters, J. Butzin, treasurer; E. Huffman, E. Maxwell. Row 3: R. Hoppe, P. Hatton, M. Mongosa, B. McKinley. Row 4: J. Myers, B. Flaherty, L. Amos, S. Graber, K. Brown, president.

Assistants to the traffic department of the Peru Police are Row 1: M. Smith, A. Crist, C. Marks. Row 2: Mr. Davis, sponsor; A. Wahlig G. Miller. Row 3: R. Moffat, T. Lee, L. Castell.

Preparing for future careers in the field of teaching are: Row 1: N. Smith, J. Hoffman, C. King, C. Boyer, R. Poff, J. King, W. Pohlman, N. Beck. Row 2: J. Zerbe, V. Gray, L. Darby, K. Kunkle, vice-president; A. Taylor, S. Blinn, F. Jones, B. Hoover, secretary; D. Winn, president. Row 3: B. Scott, P. Wilson, J. Johnson, J. Rody, C. Cole, J. Toepfer, treasurer; M. Wiltshire, C. Hetzner J. Greenfield.

Apples, Picnics, Valentines and Dances

Students interested in FTA met difficult membership qualifications this year. Those interested had to write a theme and obtain a faculty recommendation before receiving consideration for membership.

Sending Christmas cards to teachers was their first project. Members presented PHS teachers with an apple, symbolic of Teaching Career Month. Ending the year, senior members taught a half day in an elementary classroom.

Exploring unusual fields of mathematics, the Math Club became aware of new educational concepts. Faculty members affiliated with the math department spoke to the group explaining these new principles.

Although the Math Club is only three years old, it has as many members as PHS's oldest organizations. For membership, a student must be a math major and maintain a "B" average.

Delving into new fields of mathematics are: Row 1: D. Horst, S. Zwickl, F. Jones, secretory; J. Kreutzer, T. Taylor. Row 2: Mr. Rufe, sponsor, S. Ralstin, J. Johnson, C. Cole, N. Geyer, K. Jackson, K. Kunkle, S. Comerford, S. Rhodes, D. Tracey, G. Freeman. Row 3: V. Geberin, J. Gilkey, M. Ashby, J. Hill, B. Fouts, B. Bachman, D. Shafer, M. Velander, D. Scott, vice-president; B. Scott, J. Brownlee. Row 4: D. Thompson, J. Klotz, R. Danielsen, J. Greenfield, D. Reep, C. Welke, P. Cutler, E. Lanmer, R. Etue, D. LaCoss, T. Randolph, L. Stout, C. Bunnell, president.

Reflected Projects of Gaiety and Giving

Energy, effort, and efficiency — these words stand behind the accomplishments of the Junior Red Cross. To add meaning to St. Valentine's Day, the club entertained residents of the Miami County Home. One of their most satisfying accomplishments came after they had spent many diligent hours making stuffed animals for underprivileged children. Along with the Y-Teens, the group collected donations for the Heart Fund.

All projects undertaken by the club were channeled through the local Red Cross headquarters.

Providing entertainment for students throughout the year, the Canteen Board, affiliated with the YMCA, shouldered the task of adding variety to the PHS social calendar. The board, appointed by the principal and composed of four members from each class, solicited suggestions from fellow students for new activities. Meeting with both faculty and YMCA directors, members revealed student problems to the adults. On week-ends when no school events were scheduled, the board sponsored a series of combos and dance contests.

"Dear Sir," types M. Eikenberry, president, as the Canteen Board prepares suggestions for improved YMCA social activities. Other members seated are: C. Hetzner, treasurer; C. Giver, secretary; N. Smith, P. Bowland, P. Reineke, L. Claybaugh. Standing are: S. Eder, vice-president, T. Thompson, S. Ramsey, and M. Saine.

Female athletes of PHS are: Row 1: J. Ireland, vice-president; C. Giver, corresponding secretary; C. Brown, recording secretary; H. Clark, treasurer; N. Atkinson, president. Row 2: J. Bostick, M. Black, V. Wells, M. Huber, J. DeLawter, D. Bullick, L. Claybaugh, S. Sommers. P. Kilian, B. Lutz, R. Longenecker, C. Dillman, G. Bryant, J. Garrison, J. Guyer, C. Lees, S. Bruck. B. Searching into the history of the pharoh's tomb to the latest reports of the spacecraft Gemini, the history club explored phases of the past. Because of the recent organization of the club, its main and most important project was establishing a constitution. The club met after school to conduct its business.

From the battlefield of Bunker Hill to the Olympics in Japan, GAA members proved that females, too, had athletic ability. If the girls were not traveling to the bowling alley, they were participating in such activities as volleyball, deck tennis, tumbling, and basketball.

Girls Athletic Association is a nation-wide organization for girls who are interested in athletics and its benefits. Instead of pins, the girls wore metals and sweatshirts representing their organization.

PHS Modern Music Masters are. Row 1: C. Swisher, P. Tharp, J. Mullinix, B. Ballard, J. Zerbe, N. Beck, M. Whitney, C. Boyer, secretary; P. Wilson, B. Hoover, B. Allbritten, K. Benner, W. Enjoyed Knowledge - Lending Projects

Forming its own cheerblock, the PHS Pep-band combined music with school spirit to complete our pep sessions. A special corps was formed to travel out of town and promote team spirit and sportsmanship as well as give a musical lift to fans.

To change the tempo to a quieter melody, the music department formed another group to perform at two important PHS functions. With music composed by Irving Berlin, the stage band added the finishing touch to the 1964 Rodeo. Playing Berlin's music with a touch of perfection, the band accompanied the various acts. In the spring the group provided accompaniment for the Junior-Senior Musical "Camelot."

Governing the music department were the members of Tri-M. As a national organization, Modern Music Masters was open to only those musicians who passed a given test and maintained a "B" average. Meeting on call, the club tried to solve any problems confronting the music department.

Creating their own cheers the members of the PHS Pep Band include: Row 1: S. Clark, J. Brownlee, D. Thompson, R. Manifold, J. Helm. Row 2: D. Scott, S. Klepinger, C. Garrett, C. Boyer. Row 3: M. Weller, C. Cole, J. Cleveland, T. Randolph, G. Gamble. Row 4: N. Geyer, T. Thompson, B. Geberin, F. Jones, A. Ash. Row 5: S. Ralstin, B. Hoover, D. Jones, E. Thurston, J. Hoover, S. Blinn. Row 3: J. Dunton, B. Scott, D. Goff, K. Kreutzer.

Concert performers and accomplished musicians are band members: Row 1: F. Harrison, K. Jackson, P. Bennett, J. McKinley. Row 2: C. Love, B. Grant, P. McKamey, G. Manifold, D. Jones, S. Ralstin, C. Swisher, C. Boyer. Row 3: S. Clark, C. Layton, K. Miller, J. Blackman, E. Keirn, C. Landis, L. Weaver, J. Mullinix, E. Thurston, R. May. Row 4: B. White, L. Snyder, S. Clark, D. Performing for Athletic Events, Concerts,

Exhausted from work and strain of thought are band officers. J. Helm, captain; D. Scott, first lieutenant; J. Cleveland, Junior representative; G. Manifold, Sophomore representative; D. Harding, student director; J. Brownlee, manager; R. Manifold, second lieutenant. Missing are J. Zerbe, Senior representative, and L. Jackson, historian.

An empty stage, solitary practice, concentration under an inspiring director—with these tools PHS makes music. From "Salutes to Beethoven" to "Put on a Happy Face" the Marching Tiger Band showed its versatility by entertaining during half-time at our athletic functions.

At the annual Christmas and Spring Concerts, the Noblemen turned to a more serious side with music suited to the occasion. This year the music department changed the formal Christmas scene to a more casual one as students performed, attired in ski sweaters instead of tuxedos and formals. Along with their dress, the musical atmosphere was festive rather than the traditionally inspirational.

This year the Spring Concert was also presented differently. The band staged its performance the second evening of the three-night program.

Noblemen Provided Civic Entertainment

Imagination combined with talent equals a Tigerette. Again, the dancing members of our music department delighted audiences with routines done to a background of music from Broadway shows.

As they created their own steps, the Tigerettes strove to make precision timing their goal. Matching costumes to the theme of the show, the corps was ready to perform with a professional touch. Evidence of their talent was visible when the girls "Put on the Ritz" in the PHS Rodeo.

Adding a final bit of beauty, the Majorettes twirled through mud, dust, and snow. Featured attractions for various shows were Seniors Mary Frances Whitney and Florence Jones, who entertained with a variety of acts including fire batons.

Creating many unique formations for their performances are Tigerettes and Majorettes. Row 1: M. Whitney, head Majorette Row 2: B. Allbritten, L. Jackson. Row 3: J. Zerbe, head Tigerette; F. Jones, Majorette; V. Crowden. Row 4: D. Groat, alternate Tigerette; M. Wright, alternate Majorette; R. Longenecker. Row 5: A. Taylor.

Adding a touch of femininity to the music department are Row 1: L. Darby, C. Beasley, L. Pope, P. Kilian, S. Bennett, S. Garrison, S. Comerford. Row 2: P. Temple, V. Wells, C. Klotz, B. Kennedy, N. White, V. Williams, B. Westcott, K. Miller, B. Pugh, Senior representative, M. Childers. Row 3: S. Fritz, J. Pattison, J. Garlinghouse, J. Ballard, J. Redmon, B. Ballard, K. Three Unique Choral Groups Entertained

In their first invitational performance of the season, Choir and Swing Choir members bombarded Bunker Hill Air Force Base with a barrage of Broadway show tunes and patriotic numbers.

Dashing from engagements at club meetings to crowded church basements, Swing Choir members readily accepted their civic responsibilities.

The PHS entertainers chose the customary dinner jackets for the male members and a contrasting black chiffon dress for the girls. During the jam-packed season, members made harrowing split second changes from formal attire to traditional robes when both the Choir and Swing Choir participated in a dual performance.

Swinging and singing at many engagements are: Row 1: V. Crowden, J. Berger, N. Smith, D. Buzbee, J. Nelp, R. Weller, D. Harding, B. Allbritten. Row 2: K. Kunkle, B. Buffington, C. Joseph, T. Rockwell, P. Huff, J. Yentes, F. Jones R. Manifold, J. Zerbe.

Attired in familiar blue and gold are the PHS choir: Row 1: G. Galbraith, S. Minns. Row 2: L. Jackson, L. Arnold, D. Groat, J. Bostic, M. Huber. Row 3: N. Smith, A. Taylor, R. Ellis, G. Rogers, M. Donaldson. Row 4: B. Craft, T. Thompson, D. Keyes, R. Woodruff J. Berger, president; J. Helm, Senior representative, P. Cutler.

Row 1: J. McKinley, B. Siblisk. Row 2: K. Chase, P. Adamson, D. Petty. Row 3: C. Holy, S. Troyer, D. Smith, R. May, E. Jackson. Row 4: P. Bowland, C. Porter, V. Catey, student director; S. McMinn, N. Beck.

Hand over hand, music directors Rod Manifold, choir, and Vicki Catey, belles, decide which group will perform next.

Audiences Throughout Community, State

Not only did the Choir entertain outside school, but, also, within, when Mr. Noble presented seasonal choral arrangements at the Annual Christmas Concert. As the year closed, the Choir as if to say, "We're not through yet," helped produce finances for the Junior-Senior Prom by presenting the Spring Concert.

Pale blue brocade dresses with white shoes and gloves characterized the appearance of PHS's entirely female group, the Belles. The group did indeed "Say It with Music" as it delighted a packed house at the Rodeo. Following the Rodeo, the girls prepared themselves for the Christmas auditorium and other concerts.

Sports

Enthusiasm, excitement, exuberance, were a part of PHS athletics. With teams compiling winning records, fans organized cheer blocks to support athletes as they were "Windng Up Another Year."

Cheering the PHS sports teams are: Row 1: A. Phillips, P. Olson, P. Schmidt, D. Shannon, S. Bruck, J. Guyer, L. Garver, J. Toepfer, D. Gable, S. Cattin, N. Beck, P. Hatton, G. Bryant, C. Pep Sessions, Cheerblocks, School Spirit

Pepping up the reserve team are B-team cheereaders Donna Hoover, Mona Black and Jeanette Garlinghouse.

Stimulated by Enthusiastic Cheerleaders

Stimulating school spirit is the job of the varsity and B-team cheerleaders and the cheerblock. During the sectional season, boys and girls alike turned out to form the biggest cheerblock in PHS's history. Under the direction of the faculty sponsors, the three-hundred high schoolers, dressed in dark skirts and trousers and white shirts and blouses, learned new chants, yells, and motions. A new method of electing cheerleaders was installed by the Student Council. This action made the position of a cheerleader more selective. As various teams finished their seasons, the students and cheerleaders "Wound Up Another Year" in school spirit.

Performing in the Rodeo, cheerleaders Barb Lutz, Nancy Smith, Susie Hilgeman, Cindy King, and Clo Giver steal the show musically saying, "Anything You Can Do, I Can Do Better."

Head Basketball Coach, Mr. Biddle, and his assistant, Mr. Rigle, carefully plan plays and defense.

"I hope we have to stop this watch sooner for our boys than we do for opponents," says Mr. Edwards to Head Track Coach Mr. Berkshire.

Coaches Built Skill, Attitude, Character

Head Football Coach, Mr. Larson, maps out the strategy for an oncoming game as his co-workers, Mr. Keller, Mr. Kaufman, Mr. Hufford, and Mr. Welcome look on intently.

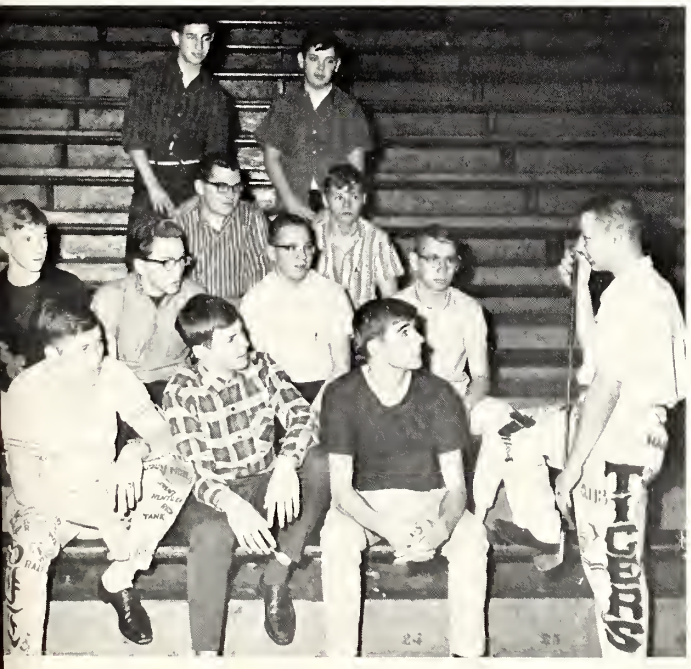
Without coaches to maintain discipline, keep the boys together, and show the proper way of doing something, athletic teams could not function.

Since football involves more boys than other sports, more coaches are needed. Helping head coach Mr. Larson are Mr. Keller, Mr. Welcome, Mr. Hufford, and Mr. Kaufman. Assistant coach Mr. Rigle develops B-team boys for future varsity play under head basketball coach Mr. Biddle. Mr· Biddle is also the cross country coach. Head coach Mr. Berkshire, along with assistant coach Mr. Edwards, keeps the track team operating smoothly

Keeping Peru High athletics operating smoothly, Mr. Spandau looks up an IHSAA rule for Coaches Larson and Biddle.

Turning out winning tennis and golf teams, respectively, are Coach Saine and Coach Craycraft.

As Managers Performed Necessary Tasks

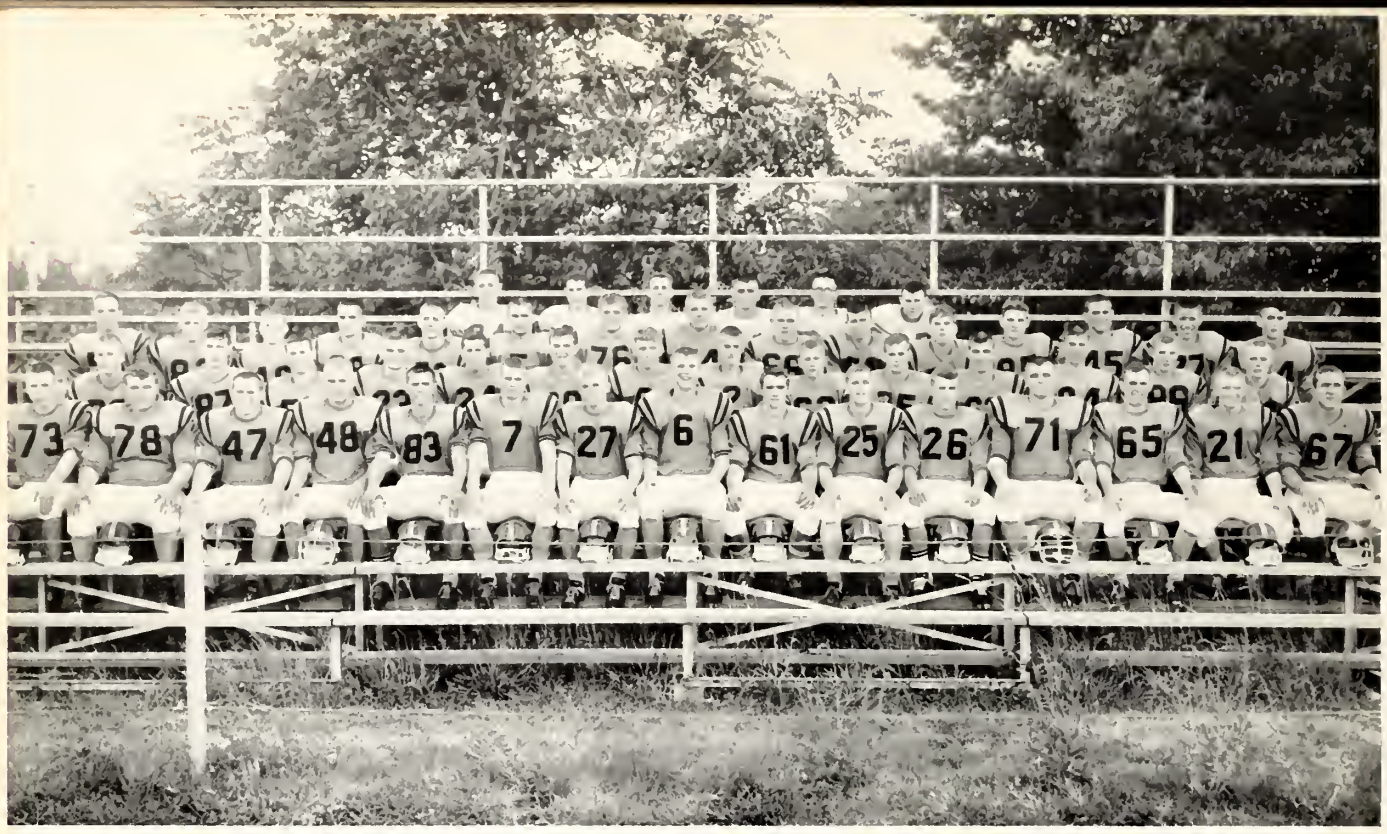


Behind-the-scenes sports workers are managers. Row 1: D. Weideman, M. Velander, C. Welke, C. Marks. Row 2: J. Nelp, G. Rogers, S. Engelage, S. Frushour. Row 3: J. Holland, N. Givens. Row 4: T. Gorseline, B. Gustin.

Coach Saine consistently puts together winning, and often undefeated, tennis teams. Similarly, Coach Craycraft can almost always be counted on to produce a winning golf team.

Mr. Spandau, athletic director, is the one who has the difficult task of arranging all of the schedules for all of the athletic teams. He must also hire responsible referees for home football and basketball games.

Managers are the unsung heroes behind the scenes who do that very necessary job of keeping the athletic equipment and the players in tip-top working order.



Placing third in the CIC is the 1964 Tiger Football team. The team includes. Row 1: T. Rockwell, R. Conklin, D. Buzbee, B. Rockenbaugh, J. Yentes, G. Bomar, B. Thurston, M. Eikenberry, D. Hartleroad, B. Buffington, B. Shuey, K. McKee, L. Minns, J. Hentgn, H. Masiuk. Row 2: M. O'Connell, R. Inniger, M. Hoover, S. Shafer, M. Weaver, J. Blackman, D. Teal, D. Hunt, J. Rockenbaugh, T. Hughes, B. Butzin, S. Eder, F. Sipe, N. Blaski. Row 3: J. Dunton, M. Mills, G. Loe, D. Constable, J. Hoover, M. Saine, M. Aikman, D. Coddington, J. Wilson, S. Smith, D. Fechtman, D. Sipe, S. Williams, R. Roller, J. Wilson. Row 4: S. Blackman, S. Denny, D. Geiselman, L. Hays, R. Ellis, M. Lunsford.

Larsonmen Showed Experience, Desire

"There it goes!" quips senior quarterback Gayle Bomar to the Logansport players. For the first time in ten years, Peru beat Logansport in the opening bout.

Peru's fighting football team completed a highly successful season of 7 wins, 2 losses, and 1 tie. Their record in the Central Indiana Conference of 4 wins, 1 loss, and 1 tie gave them third place in the Conference. No fewer than seven Tigers were named to the All-Central Indiana Conference Teams via the voting of CIC coaches. Terry Rockwell, senior center, and Rick Inniger, a senior defensive specialist, earned honorable mention. Bob Rockenbaugh, senior full back, Ron Conklin, a 260 pound senior tackle, and Jerry Yentes, a senior end who caught 21 passes, were named to the second team. Named to the first team were Gayle Bomar, senior quarterback, and Herb Masiuk, senior tackle.

The Bengals amassed a total of 209 points for an average of 20.9 points per game; whereas their opponents totaled 108 points for an average of 10.8. Peru gained 596 yards passing to their opponents' 557 and 2087 rushing to the opponents' 1220.

Senior fullback Bob Rockenbaugh and a Tipton foe await the result of the coin toss which determines who kicks off and who receives.

Pensively watching the game as Coach Larson prepares to make a substitute are seniors Jerry Yentes and Mike Eikenberry.

By Winning 7, Losing 2, Tieing 1

Climaxing a ten-year losing streak to arch rival Logansport, the Tigers opened their season with a 6-0 win over the Berries. Next came a disheartening tie with Wabash; Peru looked like they had the game sewed up with a 21-7 halftime lead, but the Apaches staged an ambush the second half to tie the game 21-21. Despite torrential downpour of rain, and a muddy field, the Bengals showed their grit by beating Huntington 6-0. Next came three consecutive victories: 26-14 over Twin Lakes, 20-0 over Hartford City, and a 35-0 homecoming victory over Alexandria. Riddled with injuries and sickness, Peru lost a "must" conference game to Elwood, 19-7. However, the Larsonmen bounced back with a 42-0 rout over Maconaquah and a most rewarding 26-14 victory over highly ranked Tipton. The Bengals closed the season with a 40-20 loss to unbeaten Warsaw.

Battle-wounded and bloody, the nose of rugged Bob Rockenbaugh shows that football is not a pansy's game.

Driving hard to escape a would-be attacker and his pursuers, Bill Shuey evades the opponent for a possible touchdown.

Several Senior Tigers Were Honored for

Good Play, Attitude

Several Tiger gridders were honored in various ways this year. Gayle Bomar, Senior quarterback, received all-state honorable mention; the left-handed field general, who completed 34 of 83 passes for 426 yards, also received the Kiwanis award for the Most Valuable Back. Rugged Senior fullback Bob Rockenbaugh, who gained 575 yards, was named the Tribune Tiger of the Year and the Elks Best Defensive Back. Hard-hitting Senior guard Herb Masiuk was named Elks Best Defensive Lineman and Rotary Most Valuable Lineman. Dale Geiselman, a Sophomore, was named the Most Improved Player by the Lions. Team tri-captains were Bob Rockenbaugh, Herb Masiuk, and Bill Shuey, a Senior halfback who rushed 342 yards and caught 15 passes for 249 yards. Carrying the ball 68 times, Senior halfback John Hentgen rushed 648 yards for an outstanding average of 9.5 yards per carry. Senior Mike Eikenberry punted 30 times for 988 yards, and Dennis Hunt, a Junior, kicked 23 extra points, including a string of 15 in a row.

Forever fighting a tug-of-war with his sweat socks, Coach Larson is shown pulling them up again while he watches the football plays during the game.

Seniors Dominated Team, Received Honors

Several honors were awarded to individuals of the Peru Tiger basketball team for their outstanding work on the round ball court during the '64-'65 season. Although the commendable record compiled by this year's squad was an all-out-effort, additional honors were presented to Senior team members who displayed outstanding ability. Six members of the basketball team received honors. The Free Throw Award was presented to Rick Inniger for 73% accuracy from the charity stripe. Much needed free throws helped the Peru Tigers come out on top in more than one game. Inniger was also awarded this season's Captain Award. The coveted Hopper Award went to Mike Eikenberry, while Tom Hayes' ability on defense earned him the Best Defensive Player Award. Outstanding work by Gayle Bomar and John Hentgen captured them this year's Most Improved Player Award.

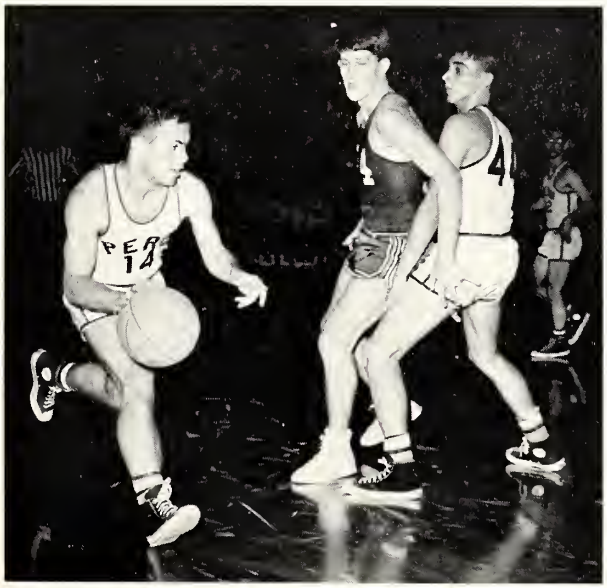
"Which way does the ball go?" wonders Kenny Day and Mike Eikenberry as they spot an opponent traveling in the opposite direction.

Seeing that he is in a spot, Gayle Bomar takes the liberty of leaving the floor to execute a unique jump shot.

Trying to work the ball for a good shot, Senior forward Kenny Day passes to Senior guard John Hentgen.

Training for the varsity squad are B-team members. They include: Row 1: J. Hoover, L. Hayes, T. Foltz, S. Ramsey, S. Blackman, M. Saine. Row 2: D. Constable, M. Mayo, D. Clark, C. Cole, J. Pearcy, D. Fechtman.

Cubs Gained Experience for Future



Gaining experience for future varsity play, Mike Saine dribbles around an opponent as Dave Constable attempts to set a pick-up for him.

By playing in B-team games, the Tiger Cubs gained experience which will prove valuable when they are playing in varsity games. In fact, one would not be too far wrong if he said that the "B-team" stood for builder, because the B-team builds varsity players.

Coached by Mr. Rigle, the reserves lost their opener, 57-45, to Marion. In real "closies" the B-team beat Lewis Cass 41-36, conquered Twin Lakes 46-42, and edged Alexandria 44-40. They defeated Hartford City 48-37 before they were trounced by Logansport 56-27 and conquered by Tipton 45-36. Squeezing by Burris 39-36, the Cubs then beat Manchester 42-34, and whipped Wabash 53-44. The team dropped a 52-44 decision to Warsaw in the first game that the varsity won while the reserves lost. The Cubs were then beaten by Kokomo 51-42 and bombed by Ft. Wayne Central 74-44.

After slipping past Oak Hill 46-42, the B-teamers lost to Huntington 43-34. The Cubs dropped their final three games by being beaten by Rochester 64-58, whipped by Michigan City 66-47, and edged by Elwood 47-43.

Peru's 1965 fighting Basketball team includes: Row 1: S. Shafer, J. Hentgen, G. Bomar, D. Hunt, T. Hayes, B. Bakehorn. Row 2: R. Danielsen, J. Yentes, M. Eikenberry, K. Day, R. Inniger, B. Rockenbaugh.

Tigers Had Experience, Winning Record

Nearing the end of their high school basketball careers, Senior Tigers practicing lay-ups are: Kenny Day, Jerry Yentes, Gayle Bomar, John Hentgen, Tom Hayes, Rick Inniger, Bob Rockenbaugh, Ralph Danielsen, and Mike Eikenberry.

Reaching high for a rebound in the Fort Wayne game, active Tom Hayes captures the ball.

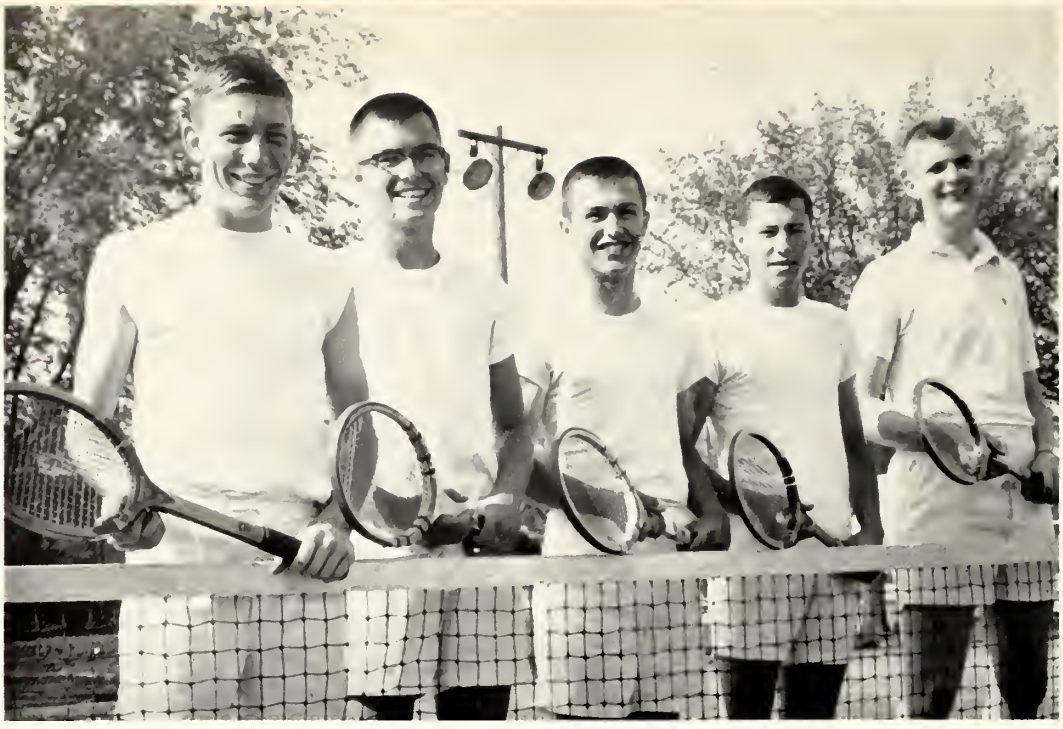
Everybody wants the ball as Junior guard Steve Shafer and Senior forward Jerry Yentes dive to take the ball from an opponent.

As They Won Holiday Tourney, Were 14-7

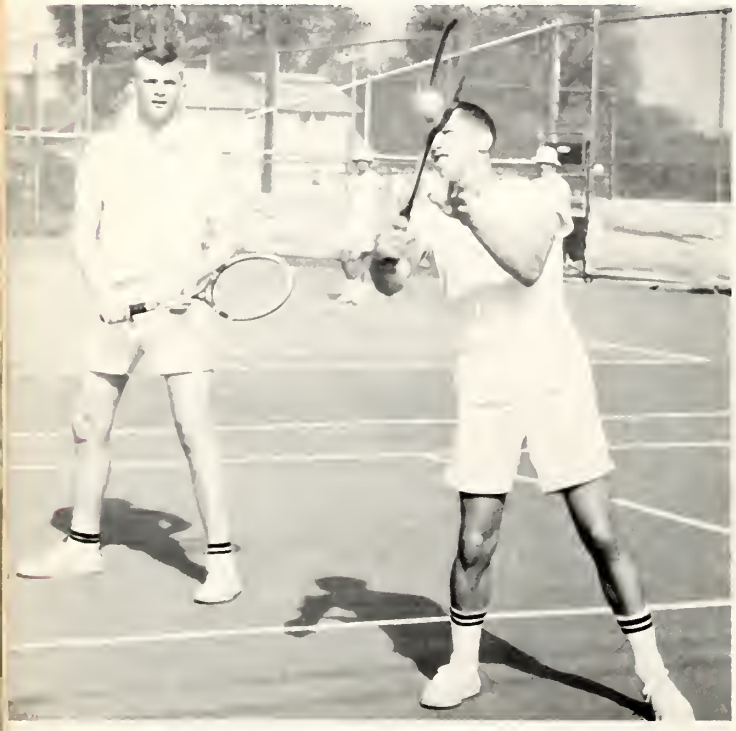
In the season's opener, the Tigers were caught 69-60 by Marion. However, they quickly rebounded with 4 straight wins over Lewis Cass 67-65, Twin Lakes 49-46, Alexandria 55-48, and Hartford City 69-59. Against Logansport the Bengals led almost all the way; the Logan-Berries, however, were able to tie the score at the end of regulation time and win 67-65 in the overtime. Tipton took the Tigers 97-70 before the cagers went on a 6-game winning streak. The charged-up Tigers won the Twin Lakes Holiday Tourney by beating Pioneer 67-55 and West Lafayette 81-72. The Bengals beat Muncie Burris 80-74, whipped Manchester 78-61 and Wabash 65-49, and edged tall Warsaw, who shot a hot .667, 69-65. The jinx with Kokomo could not be broken as the Tigers lost 82-66 before beating eighth-ranked Fort Wayne Central 70-63 and Oak Hill 87-74. The hapless cagers led Huntington late in the game by 6 points but ended up losing 56-55. Peru used a high-powered offense to trounce Rochester 95-80 and whip state-ranked Michigan City 82-72 before losing to tenth-ranked Elwood 83-72. Peru's bad luck in the Berry Bowl continued as Logansport ruined their sectional hopes 57-50 in the opening game.

Catching his man off balance, Rick Inniger whips around a Warsaw player to add two for the cause. Peru won 69-65.



Champion tennis racquetmen Don Teal, David Reep, Mike Saine, Max Weaver, and Mike Eikenberry stand with racquets ready for action. These players have polished the winning record of the tennis team.

Tennismen, 14-1, Crowned State Champs



State-champion tennis player Mike Eikenberry looks on as his doubles partner, Max Weaver, smashes a forearm shot. The two provide an almost unbeatable doubles team.

Winning about everything in sight, the tennis team captured the CIC championship, the Colonel Bishop State Tournament for the second straight year and the Lafayette Jeff Doubles for the sixth consecutive year. By winning the Colcnel Bishop tourney, they became mythical State champs. The only mar on the netmen's season was a loss to Broad Ripple, which snapped a 75-game winning streak dating back to 1959. The Racquetmen avenged this loss in the finals of the state tournament. Only five of the regular season foes were able to score against Peru's tennis aces. Lafayette Jeff, Culver Military Academy, Goshen, and Marion were beaten 5-2, 6-1, 8-1, and 6-1, respectively and Broad Ripple won 4-3. Wabash, Logansport, Huntington, and Indianapolis Park were all blanked 9-0, and Frankfort, Plymouth, Kokomo, West Lafayette, Fort Wayne South, and Elwood were shut out 7-0.

Coach Joseph Saine used Mike Eikenberry, Max Weaver, Mike Saine, David Reep, and Don Teal for the singles and Eikenberry and Weaver; Saine and Teal, and Reep and Dave Constable for the doubles teams.

Master strokesmen who swung clubs to amass a winning record of 9-2 are B. Schmitz, J. Greenfield, J. Latta, R. Bonney, C. Bunnell, E. Cowan, P. Cutler, C. Craycraft, J. King, and L. Johnson.

As Golfers Stroke 9-2 Winning Season

Continuing its winning ways with a 9-2 season, the golf team trounced Wabash 13½-1½ and upset Lafayette Jeff 12-3. In the most exciting match of the season, the golfers beat Elwood at Elwood 8-7 despite rain and high winds. Tipton was beaten 11½-3½ before the Tigers suffered their only two losses, as tough Logansport tromped them 23½-½, and Muncie Burris took them 12-3. The team finished the season with five consecutive victories. In a three-way meet at Huntington, the Tiger golfers scored a double victory, beating Huntington 9½-5½ and Warsaw 12-3. Hartford City was easy prey as it fell 11½-3½. The local linksmen beat Marion 10-5 and won an 8-7 squeaker over Manchester in another three-way meet. A match with Kokomo and a re-match with Wabash were canceled because of bad weather. The Tiger linksmen placed 9th in the CIC.

Coach Jack Craycraft lost only Jerry King and Ed Cowan to graduation and will have Park Cutler, John Greenfield, Charles Bunnell, Bob Bonney, and Chuck Craycraft returning for the 1965 season.

Demonstrating his adeptness with the sand wedge as he blasts his ball from a trap Senior Jerry King practices getting out of difficult situations.

Setting the pace in cross country this year are: Row 1: T. Wolf, L. Burdine, T. Hayes, B. Smith. Row 2: B. Bakehorn, C. Welke, L. Morguson, E. Larimer, Coach Biddle.

Cross Country Harriers Had 4-7 Mark

Two harriers on this year's cross country team, Curt Welke and Ed Larimer, run long distance to build endurance and establish a winning pace.

Cross Country, a long-distance running sport, probably takes more endurance than any other sport. Peru's runners, or harriers, compiled a 4-7 record this season. In cross country, like golf, the lower score wins. The Peruvians lost their opener to Oak Hill by a 21-36 count and were beaten by Elwood, 15-49. In a three-way meet Logansport had 15, Delphi, 45, and Peru, 65. The harriers then registered their first victory, 27-30 over Wabash. In another three-way meet, Warsaw won with 15, Peru was a close second with 19, and Huntington was last with 36. Rochester scored 23 to Argos' 54 and Peru's 65 in another tri-meet. The harriers then whipped Tipton 16-44 before placing sixth in the CIC with 151. The Tiger harriers closed with a 23-24 win over Twin Lakes.

The Bengals began the season with a third place in a six-way meet at Culver Military Academy. The Tigers smashed Wabash 98-11, and, in a three-way meet, scored 57 points to Logansport's 63 and Lewis Cass's 17. Huntington won 60-47 before Elwood fell 66-43. The Tigers gained revenge against Logansport as they tallied 48 points to Logansport's 47 and Tipton's 42. In the Delphi Relays, Peru was fourth out of eight. The Peruvians placed a fine second in the CIC. The half-mile relay team of Bob Musgrave, Gregg Hammond, John Hughes, and Gary Stewart won by setting a school and CIC record of 1:33.4. Musgrave set a record of 10.1 seconds to win the 100-yard dash, and Hammond won the broad jump. At the Rochester Relays, the Tigers placed second in a field of seven.

The talented trackmen placed second in the sectional as first places were won by the half-mile relay team, Musgrave in the hundred, and Hammond in the broad jump. Musgrave's first and Hammond's third in the regional enabled them to proceed to the state.

Gregg Hammond and Bob Musgrave run around the track. Both were members of Peru's record-breaking half-mile relay team.

"You really don't think you can sleep, do you, Bill?" growls Mr. Welcome to Bill Shuey. Fellow weightlifters Mike Hoover, DeWayne Buzbee, and Bruce Thurston watch.

Weight Lifters Built Muscles for Football

Glancing at his precariously balanced barbells, Jon Blackman wonders how long he will be able to hold the stance. Lifting barbells strengthens upper-arm muscles.

A winning football team can only be had with year-round training and conditioning. These requirements are met through Coach Larson's weight-lifting program. With the help of assistant coach Welcome, Mr. Larson puts his Tigers through isometrics, weight-lifting, agility drills, and endurance drills. The idea of the program is not to build boys into muscle-bound brutes, but to build them into well-toned all-around athletes. It is only through work now, that the Tigers will win next year.

Major-letter winners earn a P-Jacket. They include: Row 1: N. Blaski, L. Burdine, T. Wolf, B. Smith, G. Moore, T. Gorseline, S. Engelage, D. Watson, B. Gustin, C. Marks, G. Loe, M. Hoover, D. Major letter winners in football, cross country, basketball, track, tennis, and golf are eligible to join the P-Club. Coach Biddle and Coach Larson are the faculty sponsors for P-Club.

Fans have C-21 Club members to thank for that cup of coffee and hot dog which made watching a football game more pleasant or that Coke and popcorn which made basketball games more enjoyable. Mr. Stone is the faculty sponsor who keeps C-21 Club in full operation.

WINDING UP ANOTHER YEAR IN

Personalities

Lasting friendships were formed among students and faculty members. Class officers directed the duties of each class, and class members participated in the work. Becoming acquainted with other people was a part of "Winding Up Another Year" in Personalities.

New Principal Headed PHS Activities

Working energetically over his typewriter, Mr. Allmon types the agenda for the next teachers' meeting. Students soon realized that he was willing to work with them any time they needed assistance.

A principal's work is never done. These were the thoughts of our new principal, Mr. Clyde Allmon. He carried out the policies of the School Board, supported school activities enthusiastically, and supervised the many curricular and extra-curricular activities of our school. This was often difficult and time-consuming work, but work which gave the students a better chance to know the new principal.

Mr. Allmon spent his first few days meeting the students and becoming accustomed to the daily routine. He could be seen walking through the halls talking easily with a visitor, working conscientiously in his office, or chatting with a student.

Representing PHS at many meetings, working to achieve a better school, actively supporting our school, and making important decisions with the help of the school board were the various duties of our superintendent, Mr. Fred Fechtman.

Winding up ten years of hard work in the Peru School System, Mr. Fechtman has a record that testifies to the combination of experience and good judgment which make him one of the finest superintendents in Indiana.

Removing his glasses for a moment's rest before plunging into a stack of material to be read, Mr. Fechtman smiles for the photographer. Mr. Fechtman supervises the Peru City School system

Board Discussed Varied School Issues

Deciding important school policies is the School Board. Seated are Mrs. Mary Robinson, clerk to the School Board; Mr. Albert Fishback, Vice-President; Mr. Richard Weinke, Athletic Representative; Miss Vernice Shepler, Assistant Secretary. Standing are Mr. Robert Haig, Attorney; Mr. Lester Stout, President; Mr. Richard Scott, Treasurer; Mr. Fred Fechtman, Superintendent; Mr. Robert Thompson, Second Vice-President; and Mr. Herschel Wheeler, Secretary.

Our seven-member School Board spent many hours discussing the internal redoing of our school, plus the many other problems involved in a school system. The board also oversaw all schools in the Peru Community School System and contracted for them.

Working with the principal and superintendent were three women who kept the offices in good order and helped make life easier for their bosses.

Typing checks for teachers is Mrs. Robinson, secretary to the School Board, as Mrs. Tresch, Secretary to the Superintendent, reads the numbers.

Preparing college transcripts for seniors and typing daily announcements keep Mrs. Garrett busy. She is also secretary to the principal.

Peru High School lost a fine teacher July, 1964 with the death of Miss Elizabeth Ridenour (left). Miss Ridenour taught geometry and sponsored Future Teachers of America and the Junior Class. Another teacher, Mrs. Alma Zeigler, (right), died June, 1964. Mrs. Zeigler taught history and English at Peru. She was active in many school and community functions.

Seniors "Wind Up" High School Years

Taking advantage of an opportunity to leave school early are Pam McComas and Linda Kreh. Seniors who had a first or sixth period study hall could be released from school during these hours.

Checking the list of graduating Seniors is Vicki Crowden, class secretary, as Clo Giver, treasurer, holds a graduation robe for Terry Rockwell, president, and Jerry Yentes, vice-president, to examine.

Progressing from quesy Sophomores to confident Seniors in three short years, the memories of events floated back to Seniors on graduation day. The after-school cokes, the class meetings, the crowded halls, the tough tests—all minds paused momentarily on these thoughts before racing forward to future plans:

Seeing their names appear on the first honor roll during their Sophomore year, reading their opinions in the polls for the Peruvian, choosing their class rings, and selecting their representatives were a thrill as Sophomores. Their first Rodeo performance was a smash; how grand their names looked on the programs! But the months evolved rapidly, and they soon anticipated finishing their first years at PHS and beginning their second one.

As Juniors they worried about the future; Jobs and college entrance exams were not far away. The musical "Bye, Bye Birdie" climaxed their social events. To redeem class averages, they studied harder for good grades and enrolled in summer school.

As Seniors at last, many thought they had reached the pinnacle of life; but they soon found that they had only conquered the first foothill. As the coveted Senior cords were tucked away and the souveniers were glued in the scrapbooks, the Seniors completed three years of high school life. On the threshold of a new adventure and a new life the Seniors finished "Winding Up Another Year"—their last year at PHS.

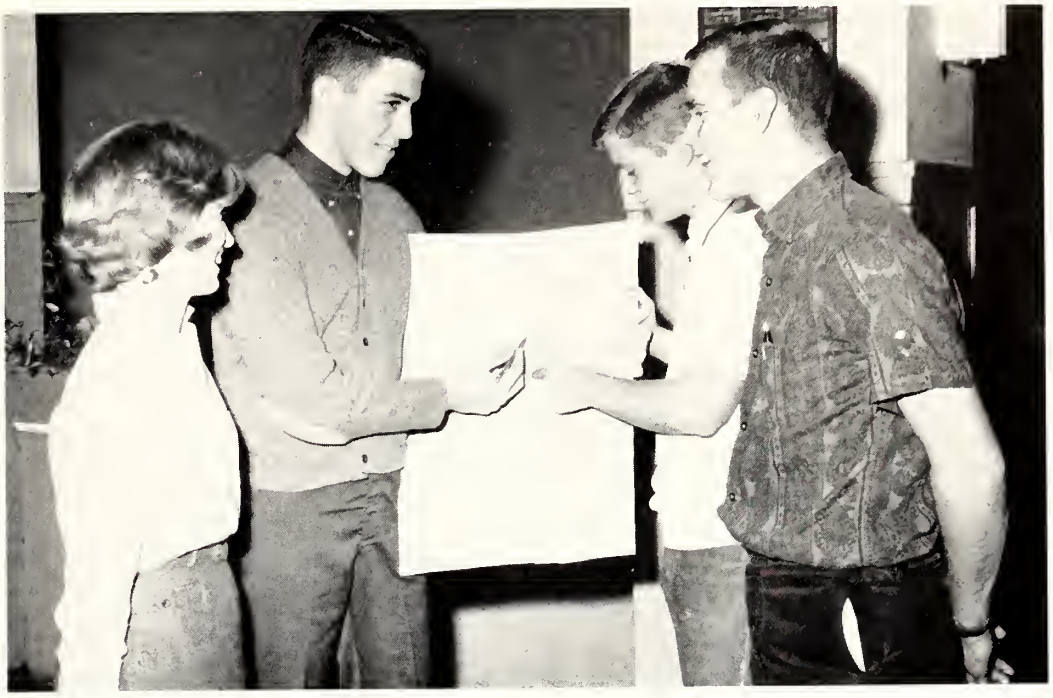
Officers Lead Senior-Day Processional



Collaborating ideas for a poster announcing the Junior-Senior Prom are the Junior class officers, Linda Weaver, secretary; Marty Doucette, president; Max Mills, vice-president; and Terry Hughes, treasurer.

Fans applaud approval as the third place float of Junior Homeroom 214 passes the reviewing stands with the help of Bud Craft, Neal Givens, and Kenny Witt.

Caught in the web of being too young to be upperclassmen, yet too old to be underclassmen, the Juniors "Wound Up 1965" in a flurry of action. Pizza parties, coke dates, after-game dances—these activities highlighted the Junior social wheel.

Serving their apprenticeship in school activities, Juniors filled offices on the Girls' and Boys' League Cabinets while the more studious class members were elected to the National Honor Society.

Sophomores looked to the Juniors for advice and guidance; Seniors consulted them about Commencement and the Prom. New class rings signified their school status. Many Juniors began to prepare for college life; some experienced their first college entrance tests. As they began to look ahead to their senior year, to the opportunities of the future, Juniors eagerly "Wound Up" their second year at PHS.

Juniors Planned Prom, Commencement,

Sophomores Learned Routine Quickly as

Trying out all the methods of transportation at PHS are Sophomore class officers, Cliff Butzin, president; Denny Clark vice-president; Alice Horr, secretary; and Mike Aikman, treasurer.

Learning to do a research paper as Sophomores are David Zwickl and Carolyn Love.

Learning a new curriculum, making new friends, joining more and different clubs, and auditioning for the music department were several of the activities of the Sophomores. They joined the upperclassmen in electing class officers and in cheering for the Tigers at sports events. The greatest thrill of becoming a part of PHS was the choosing of their coveted class rings.

The Sophomores wound up their first year looking forward to being upperclassmen.

WINDING UP
ANOTHER YEAR IN

Advertising

Quick trips to the drug store for lunch or to the department store for a new dance dress characterized PHS life. Students patronized many merchants downtown as they were "Winding Up Another Year" in purchasing needed materials.

Tackling Interviews, Composing Articles,

Submerged in a year's work is Susie Hilgeman, editor-in-chief of the Peruvian, PHS's bi-weekly publication.

For aspiring journalists and printers, the Peruvian, afforded students practical training in their individual fields of endeavor.

Working under a tight schedule, the staff rushed to meet deadlines in order to produce the paper on a consistent bi-weekly basis.

By presenting news and features through the efforts of reporters and creative writers, the Peruvian both informed and entertained its readership.

As a molder of public opinion, the paper in various editorials attempted to influence faculty and student viewpoints.

Turning in assignments for the school paper are Miss Azimow's first semester journalism class students. Row 1: D. Tracy, P. Hartleroad, D. Spurgeon. Row 2: S. Bennett, M. Keirn, S. Rhodes, T. Thompson, L. Sykes.

Writing headlines and making assignments are Jane Wheeler and Candy Hetzner, associate editors of the Peruvian.

Reporters Learned Journalistic Ropes

Working behind the scenes for every issue of the Peruvian are staff members: Row 1: E. Bethel, society editor; N. Snyder, associate society editor; B. Allbritten, co-feature editor. Row 2: B. Ballard, business manager; C. Anderson, staff writer; C. oJseph, co-feature editor. Row 3: T. Brown, photographer; C. Drake, staff writer; J. McCormick, assistant sports editor. Row 4: B. Westcott, sports editor; P. Holmes, cartoonist.

Taking Pictures, Selling Ads, Editing Copy

Cropping the last picture for the 1965 Narcissus are Louise Schini, assistant editor, and Donna Winn, editor-in-chief.

Deriving its title from the Greek mythological tale of the youth who falls in love with his reflection in a pool, the Narcissus photographically captured student reflections for future generations.

Section editors carried out the task of recording accurately the various activities involved in each phase of life at PHS. These editors invented new picture ideas, cropped photographs, wrote copy, and composed headlines to wind up each section of the book.

As editors created new picture ideas, photographers made these abstract plans realities. Not only did photographers work with editors, but also with business staff members, who arranged for the financing of the yearbook by contacting merchants to purchase advertisements in the book.

Working in cooperation with local merchants were: W. Pohlman, advertising staff member; D. Hull, photographer; T. Rockwell, business manager; M. Murphy, advertising manager; J. King, assistant advertising manager; L. Shank, assistant business manager; and L. Dancey, advertising staff member.

Accepted into the national journalism honorary, Quill and Scroll, are: Row 1: L. Schini, J. Hoffman, C. Clingaman, M. Murphy, S. Cattin, S. Hilgeman, C. Joseph. Row 2: B. Westcott, C. Hetzner, D. Winn, J. Wheeler, M. Wiltshire, J. Greenfield, D. Hull.

Homeroom 210 combed the school for Narcissus collections again this year. Members include: Row 1: D. Gable, B. McKinley, L. Kreh, P. Miller, O. Brindle, M. Murphy, R. Jackson. Row 2: J. DeLawter, L. Richter, M. Childers, P. Olson, S. Clark, R. Sparks, D. Richards. Row 3: J. Brownlee, J. Hahn, B. Grant, J. Kreutzer, J. Toepfer, L. Miller, M. Velander. Row 4: D. Scott, S. Baldwin, J. Jackson, R. Hoppe, M. Eikenberry, K. Day, L. Morgucon, D. Weideman, T. Lee.

Staff Members Produced Their Book

Bon Voyage!
Louise

With the year over and the yearbook "Wound Up," Louise Schini, Assistant Editor; Miss Azimow, Faculty Sponsor; and Donna Winn, Editor-in-Chief reminisce over the activities and events of 1965 and tidy up the year's work.

As each revolution of string is wound on a ball, the ball grows larger and firmer; so with each passing day, PHS students shaped a more perfectly rounded ball as they were "Winding Up Another Year." Most of the efforts to shape a better year are recorded in this book, which could not have been published without the assistance of many people.

We want to thank our entire staff for all of the work and time they put into the book. We also extend our appreciation and thanks to Mr. Charles Mueller of Ropkey Engraving Company who advised us in layout and design; to Mr. and Mrs. William Manmiller of the Peru Sentinel Printing Company who supervised the setting of our copy; and to Mr. Jack Bundy of S. K. Smith Company who helped us select our cover. Very special thanks to Mr. Earl Winters, our compositor, whose patience and determination helped us to have more patience.

We thank Mr. Philip Fox and Homeroom 210 for the wonderful job of handling the circulation of the yearbook. Our thanks also go to Jim Mitchell for the fine job he did on the art work for the yearbook. The co-operation we received from the faculty and Mr. Allmon on "picture days" was unequaled.

Our good-natured photographer, Mr. John Waltz, could never be thanked enough for the thousands of trips he made to the school to snap pictures. Mr. Waltz's jokes eased the strain of picture-taking.

We also give our warmest thanks to our advisor, Miss Beth Azimow, who helped plan pictures, worked Saturdays with the staff, and brightened the publications office. We appreciate all her work to help make this book the best ever!
